

7-17-14

Hello Mr. ZIMMERMAN,

I rec'd your letter about my large brickyard building that needs Roof repairs A.S.A.P., ON 7-16.

I'd rather meet with you in person next week (rather than a phone call) to explain the situation.

Basically, I thought I'd do the new roof, but do not care for heights (even though it doesn't look that steep on the top "hip", it feels like it.)

Then after more time, I came up with the idea of possibly a 2 or 3 car garage to use up my rear space.

But then considering my retirement age, future costs etc... the roof just "went by," hopefully to accomplish "something" before winter. And yes, I do have a couple of questions.

Tues,

Hello Tom,

Season's Greetings & to let you I'm still around. The corn has been a month, but somehow more little jobs popping up. My wife & I are taking a during Christmas, & my pickup is worked on to haul "whatever" for the when I get back.

A couple of questions we can discuss.

1) Does an attached patio now enclose just a roof & posts (sides open) 15'. Would this need an OK from people in a 200' Radius?

2) And likewise, if a 2 or 3 car garage this type of variance, does it take person to object, & then I'm not, (= there goes all my plans & hopes down the Merry Christmas, no need to call or see your spreadsheet.
