Date 7/7/80 Inspector R. Hayman

TO: Keith Muehlfeld
FROM: Richard G. Hayman
SUBJECT: Noodles Lounge
DATE: May 9, 1980

An inspection was done on May 8, 1980 of the remodeled second floor of a business known as Noodles Lounge at 730 N. Perry St., Napoleon, Ohio. Richard G. Hayman, Building Commissioner and Bruce Weirauch, Assistant to the Building Department and Engineers Office, met Mr. Jack Stevens in the lounge area and requested him to accompany them on an inspection of the newly installed dwelling units on the second floor, above the lounge. We went up a rear stairs that was not fire protected. Halfway up the stairs there was a room with a small bed and desk. At the top of the stairs we were led into a large room that was completely finished into a bedroom with a king-size bed covered with a valour cover. The room was done in very expensive taste, including all furniture. Also in this room was a complete kitchen. The overall dimension of the room is about 20 feet wide by 32 feet long. There also was a bath in a separate little room within the bedroom, kitchen area. We then entered another room toward the front of the building that was a duplicate of the first room, except it was reversed or flipped over from the first room. There was only a few peices of furniture in the second room and looked as if it was not occupied. The door we went thru from one suite to the other was direct, not from a common hall.

I asked Mr. Stevens who occupied the rear suite and he said he did. I asked him if he realized he was not authorized to occupy any part of the second floor, until all codes of the City were met. He said he was going to live there until he was kicked out. I then informed him that he could be fined up to $1,000 a day for every day he occupied the suite. He asked if the reason I came there was to harass him. I told him that I was not there to harass but to see if the suite was being occupied. We then left by the front stair exit which led off the front suite. He said something to the effect that he met all State codes. The front stairs was not of a fire rated material. The stop work order that had been posted on the front lower entrance door off N. Perry Street had been removed.
